INTRODUCTION

This guide is intended to serve as an introduction to historical research materials. The second edition, like the first, is a selective guide with major emphasis on American, British, and other West European resources. Only the most useful and representative materials are included here; however, many other specialized and foreign language resources are also available in the UTK Library.

Materials are broadly organized in categories according to the type of information they provide. An author-title index is also included. Location in the UTK Library is indicated by the Library of Congress classification number and the following designations:

Main Ref	Main Library, Reference Dept.
Main	Main Library, Stacks Area
Sp. Coll.	Main Library, Special Collections Dept.
Bibl. Al.	Main Library, Bibliographic Alcove
Main Non-Print	Main Library, Non-Print Dept.
UGL Ref	Undergraduate Library, Reference Dept.
UGL	Undergraduate Library, Stacks Area
Sci/Eng	Science/Engineering Library

A number of publications located in the Reference departments are superceded annually or less frequently. In such cases only the latest edition is kept in the Reference Room; the previous editions will be found in the stacks under the same call number. The form of bibliographic citation used conforms, with few exceptions, to that found on Library of Congress printed cards.

For additional assistance with research problems or aid in identifying further sources for investigation, ask a reference librarian.
